

Department of Sociology and Anthropology Sociology/Criminology Internship Program Announcement for Fall 2021

The SOCI 498 internship experience is designed to provide students with an opportunity to engage in applied sociology—to integrate knowledge and theory with field experience and to evaluate vocational options based on newly acquired knowledge and skills. Additionally, internships can provide opportunities for students to gain valuable work experience, develop professional contacts, and to give back to the community. Students who are accepted into the SOCI 498 program will have a chance to earn 3 academic credits that can be counted towards elective requirements in Sociology.

The preliminary list of potential internship partners for Fall 2021 includes:

1. Bozeman Police Department
2. Sheriff's Office Training Division (help coordinate training and certificate opportunities for Sheriff's Office employees, participate in training exercises)
3. Sheriff's Office Patrol Division (coordinate Sheriff's Office patrols and response throughout Gallatin Valley)
4. The Detention Center (i.e., local jail); one position at the Detention Center (cycle through jail divisions including intake, security, and programs/services; assist with projects for jail), one position with Fresh Start Reentry Program (foster successful transitions for people returning to Bozeman and Gallatin County following a stay in jail or prison)
5. The Office of Court Services for Gallatin County (visits to the jail, attending court hearings, and meeting with clients; great for students interested in legal work or social services)
6. The Office of the Public Defender (attend court hearings, assist with data and writing projects, and direct client interaction; great for students interested in legal work or social services)
7. Bridgercare has internship opportunities for students interested in sexual and reproductive healthcare (see website for more details and application process)
8. Montana Correctional Enterprises (remote position assisting with creation of databases of housing and other reentry resources; great for students interested in criminal justice and social service work)

DEADLINES

Application materials and accompanying documents must be completed and submitted to Dr. Cody Warner (cody.warner@montana.edu). Applications are due by Friday, April 23rd, 2021, by 5:00 PM. Submission does not guarantee acceptance into the program, so please be sure to have a back-up plan for your Fall 2021 course load.

PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

The actual internship experience will vary according to the needs and opportunities of the sponsoring agency. In all cases, however, the basic requirements of the internship are:

1. Work Requirements: Interns will be expected to provide useful service to the sponsoring organization (8-10 hours per week). The nature of the work will vary greatly, based on agency needs. Interns must comply with all rules and regulations of the sponsoring agency.
2. Journal: A log and journal recording worktime, activities, and sociologically based insights must be kept and updated via Assignment Folders on the course D2L.
3. Paper: The student will write a final paper that provides closure to their internship experience. Papers will be approximately 6-8 typewritten pages (double-spaced, 12- point font) applying sociological theory and scholarship to their experiences at the sponsoring agency.
4. Meetings: Students will be expected to meet with their Internship Coordinator twice during the course of the semester. These periodic progress reports will allow the instructor to evaluate your performance throughout the semester.

ELIGIBILITY

To be eligible for placement into the internship program, the following requirements must be met:

1. Current major in Sociology (general or criminology options) with at least 15 credits of SOCI courses (minors also considered)
2. Junior or Senior standing (preferred but not required)
3. A GPA of 3.0 (preferred but not required)
4. Completed SOCI 318 (or enrolled in Fall 2021)

APPLICATION AND SELECTION

Interested students should submit the following by April 23rd:

1. Completed application form (sent as separate attachment)
2. Current resume
3. Personal statement of no more than one page. Please discuss here why you would be a good fit for a particular internship, and how it will help you achieve career goals (see application for more information).

Applications will first be screened by Dr. Warner and then forwarded to the respective agencies. Students may be contacted for follow-up questions or interviews.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

What is an internship?

The National Society for Experiential Education defines an internship as a: “work or service experience in which an individual has intentional learning goals and reflects actively on what he or she is learning throughout the experience.” In consultation with faculty, students choose from a host of experiential learning opportunities designed to foster personal, academic, and professional growth.

Why should I do an internship?

The internship experience is designed to give students “hands on” experience—to apply what is learned in the classroom to real world situations. Internships are a concrete and meaningful way to more fully develop what Mills calls the Sociological Imagination, so that participants see and understand the interconnectedness of self, other, and the many social institutions within which we all function.

In addition, there are other benefits to participating in an internship program. While there can be no doubt that academic achievement helps form a solid foundation for career success, exposure to and engagement with the world beyond the academy can be instrumental in helping students to understand the requirements of a profession and make informed career choices. Beyond this, research also shows that internships help students acquire new skills, improve writing and analytical skills, and develop valuable references and contacts.

How many credits can I earn through the internship program?

You may earn from three academic credits in this program.

How many hours a week will I need to work?

The number of hours you work each week may vary somewhat depending on your schedule and the needs of the agency for which you are working. To receive full course credit, however, you must meet your total hour requirements. Our interns generally work between 6-8 hours a week for a total of 90 hours throughout the course of the semester.

How will I be graded?

The faculty member will assess participants and assign grades based on: weekly journal entries, a term paper, duty fulfillment, and supervisor evaluations.

INTERNSHIP ETHICAL REQUIREMENTS

Montana State University Code of Conduct

Department of Sociology and Anthropology Montana State University

During your internship, you must adhere to Montana State University's Student Code of Conduct. If you have not reviewed the code recently, please read it again:

http://www2.montana.edu/policy/student\_conduct/

American Sociological Associations Code of Ethics

Since you are a sociologist, you must also adhere to the American Sociological Association's Code of Ethics. A summary of the ASA code is attached as Appendix I. You may also view the full code here: <http://www.asanet.org/galleries/default-file/Code%20of%20Ethics.pdf>

Sociology Internship Code of Ethics and Conduct

In addition to the Montana State University Student Code of Conduct, you will adhere to the following rules during the course of your internship. Violation of these rules can lead to a failing grade and expulsion from the internship program.

1. Understand and follow the sponsoring agency's rules.
2. NEVER allow yourself to be placed in a dangerous situation.
3. Do not engage in conduct that is beyond your training.
4. Ask questions when you do not understand something.
5. Do not convey sensitive information to family or friends outside the agency.
6. Never violate client/suspect confidentiality.
7. Always be on time--Don't leave early.
8. Dress according to the expectations of the agency.
9. Always behave in a professional manner.
10. Use appropriate language and avoid profanity.
11. Be courteous and respectful to clients and agency staff.
12. Be honest and forthright in all areas of your internship.
13. Avoid becoming involved in agency politics or gossip.
14. Never start an inappropriate relationship with either staff or clients during the internship.

Thank you for your interest in the Internship Program.

APPENDIX I

AMERICAN SOCIOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION: CODE OF ETHICS

<http://www.asanet.org/cs/root/leftnav/ethics/ethics>

Department of Sociology and Anthropology Montana State University

The American Sociological Association's (ASA's) Code of Ethics sets forth the principles and ethical standards that underlie sociologists' professional responsibilities and conduct. These principles and standards should be used as guidelines when examining everyday professional activities. They constitute normative statements for sociologists and provide guidance on issues that sociologists may encounter in the professional work environment.

ASA's Code of Ethics consists of an Introduction, a Preamble, five General Principles, and specific Ethical Standards. This Code is also accompanied by the Rules and Procedures of the ASA Committee on Professional Ethics which describe the procedures for filing, investigating, and resolving complaints of unethical conduct.

The Preamble and General Principles of the Code are aspirational goals to guide sociologists toward the highest ideals of sociology. Although the Preamble and General Principles are not enforceable rules, they should be considered by sociologists in arriving at an ethical course of action and may be considered by ethics bodies in interpreting the Ethical Standards.

The Ethical Standards set forth enforceable rules for conduct by sociologists. Most of the Ethical Standards are written broadly in order to apply to sociologists in varied roles, and the application of an Ethical Standard may vary depending on the context. The Ethical Standards are not exhaustive. Any conduct that is not specifically addressed by this Code of Ethics is not necessarily ethical or unethical.

Membership in the ASA commits members to adhere to the ASA Code of Ethics and to the Policies and Procedures of the ASA Committee on Professional Ethics. Members are advised of this obligation upon joining the Association and that violations of the Code may lead to the imposition of sanctions, including termination of membership. ASA members subject to the Code of Ethics may be reviewed under these Ethical Standards only if the activity is part of or affects their work-related functions, or if the activity is sociological in nature. Personal activities having no connection to or effect on sociologists' performance of their professional roles are not subject to the Code of Ethics.

Preamble

This Code of Ethics articulates a common set of values upon which sociologists build their professional and scientific work. The Code is intended to provide both the general principles and the rules to cover professional situations encountered by sociologists. It has as its primary goal the welfare and protection of the individuals and groups with whom sociologists work. It is the individual responsibility of each sociologist to aspire to the highest possible standards of conduct in research, teaching, practice, and service.

The development of a dynamic set of ethical standards for a sociologist's work-related conduct requires a personal commitment to a lifelong effort to act ethically; to encourage ethical behavior by students, supervisors, supervisees, employers, employees, and colleagues; and to consult with others as needed concerning ethical problems. Each sociologist supplements, but does not violate, the values and rules specified in the Code of Ethics based on guidance drawn from personal values, culture, and experience.

General Principles

The following General Principles are aspirational and serve as a guide for sociologists in determining ethical courses of action in various contexts. They exemplify the highest ideals of professional conduct.

Principle A: Professional Competence

Sociologists strive to maintain the highest levels of competence in their work; they recognize the limitations of their expertise; and they undertake only those tasks for which they are qualified by education, training, or experience. They recognize the need for ongoing education in order to remain professionally competent; and they utilize the appropriate scientific, professional, technical, and administrative resources needed to ensure competence in their professional activities. They consult with other professionals when necessary for the benefit of their students, research participants, and clients.

Principle B: Integrity

Sociologists are honest, fair, and respectful of others in their professional activities—in research, teaching, practice, and service. Sociologists do not knowingly act in ways that jeopardize either their own or others' professional welfare. Sociologists conduct their affairs in ways that inspire trust and confidence; they do not knowingly make statements that are false, misleading, or deceptive.

Principle C: Professional and Scientific Responsibility

Sociologists adhere to the highest scientific and professional standards and accept responsibility for their work. Sociologists understand that they form a community and show respect for other sociologists even when they disagree on theoretical, methodological, or personal approaches to professional activities. Sociologists value the public trust in sociology and are concerned about their ethical behavior and that of other sociologists that might compromise that trust. While endeavoring always to be collegial, sociologists must never let the desire to be collegial outweigh their shared responsibility for ethical behavior. When appropriate, they consult with colleagues in order to prevent or avoid unethical conduct.

Principle D: Respect for People's Rights, Dignity, and Diversity

Sociologists respect the rights, dignity, and worth of all people. They strive to eliminate bias in their professional activities, and they do not tolerate any forms of discrimination based on age; gender; race; ethnicity; national origin; religion; sexual orientation; disability; health conditions; or marital, domestic, or parental status. They are sensitive to cultural, individual, and role differences in serving, teaching, and studying groups of people with distinctive characteristics. In all of their work-related activities, sociologists acknowledge the rights of others to hold values, attitudes, and opinions that differ from their own.

Principle E: Social Responsibility

Sociologists are aware of their professional and scientific responsibility to the communities and societies in which they live and work. They apply and make public their knowledge in order to contribute to the public good. When undertaking research, they strive to advance the science of sociology and to serve the public good.
